Press Release

Windows Git client Tower reaches public beta

The beta version is now available as a free download.

Berlin, Germany - October 10th, 2016. German software company fournova launches the public beta for Tower for Windows - a new Git client for the Windows platform. Over the last months several thousand users had early access as part of a private beta. As of today the software is available as a free download for everyone.

fournova CEO Tobias Günther notes: "The response to our private beta was amazing. Thousands of users tested the Windows version over the course of the last months and gave us valuable feedback. With today's launch of the public beta we give everyone instant access to the beta version. We're excited about the feedback and are looking forward to make Tower the best Git client for Windows with the help of our users."

The windows version was built completely with native technologies. Besides popular features such as a unique conflict wizard, support for Git-flow and Submodules as well as Easy Undo, the app works smoothly with all Git hosting services and offers an even deeper integration with the most popular ones. Further design and functionality improvements will be released during the beta program.

"Our main focus is the productivity of our users. With Tower we not only want to provide them with the best tool for Git, we want to support them to write better code", adds fournova's CMO Julian Rothkamp.

The beta version is available as a free download from the Tower website:
